At that time it was too early to speak positively as to the standing those girls would take in the regular courses in the High School. It has been gratifying to find that twenty-seven of these girls entered the regular courses of the High School and have secured a very satisfactory standing in their classes. Of these twenty-seven girls twenty are enrolled in the Commercial Department and seven in the Extra Technical Courses. Their work in the High School is being watched with interest by Superintendent Spaulding, who is a leader in the movement to educate all the boys and girls in the community, giving to each the peculiar treatment that the case requires; and then making the public...
