Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Jane McCrea: A Dramatic Poem When from the din of war's alarms, Restored within each others arms. When slaughtering guns are heard no more, Along the Hudson's tranquil shore, Here would we live, and here enjoy Those sweet pursuits, that wars destroy. My brother, dear as life to me, Has struck the blow for Liberty Ah! Shouldst thou then to battle go, And Show thyself his mortal foe, Discord between you will arise, And break true friendship's dearest ties; These vows will end which we have plighted, And all our hopes will then be blighted. Jones. Come, talk not thus, dry up those tears, Dispel those sad foreboding fears I is true thy brother, sad to say, Hath Joined the rebels in the fray But for thy sake Where'er I go, I never shall Show myself his foe; Yet to do justice to our King, (as yet inactive I have been,) I must away, and with them there Be willing in the strife to share. And surely, thou wilt not disdain The honors I may chance to gain; For whatsoever my lot may be Thro' life, I'll share it, love, with thee. I will devise some secret scheme, vvhich some friend may come unseen, And bring you tidings from afar, Where'er may be the seat of war. Jane. Thy counsel, noble, kind, and wise, I will approve, and not despise. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
