Hunter, Esq., Toronto This collection is an interesting assemblage of the numismatic historical monuments commemorating the foundation of the French and British colonies in North America that subsequently comprised the Dominion of Canada. Then the medallic memorials of the War between France and Great Britain, which involved their colonies in America, is represented by important and interesting examples, and medals referring to North America are included. These are followed by medals referring to the Revolutionary War of separation from the mother country, of the portion that subsequently formed the United States, together with a number of the very rare medals relating to the War of 1812, given by Great Britain to her troops who served in America; then another series of a few representative English coins of these periods and of British historical medals and the later coins and medals of Canada to the present time.
